[Petition] against the C. P. R. R. Co.

Crocker & Co. [illegible] Central Pacific Railroad Company, the [illegible] and Finance Company. The petition [illegible] that legislation be postponed until the [illegible] have reported the facts and the pen[illegible] to make good the serious allegations [illegible] the petition. Petitioners allege that [illegible] in value $125,000,000 besides [illegible] secured by mortgages on the road to the [illegible] of $27,000,000 more. They say the construction [illegible] the flimsiest character and that the road [illegible] could be built for $30,000,000. The [illegible] charges that the managers of the corpora[illegible] C. P. Huntington and Chas. Crocker formed the [illegible] known as Chas. Crocker & Co., of which all [illegible] were members and that they let to the [illegible] the contract for building [illegible] extravagant price [illegible] Frauds are alleged [illegible] of which [illegible] members. The petition makes out a case against the Central Pacific which if sustained would be even worse than the Credit Mobilier fraud in the construction of the Union Pacific.

Among the signers of a petition presented by Sargent are John Kelly [illegible] Anthony [illegible] Anthony Coats who state they [illegible] stockholders in the Central Pacific Railroad Company [illegible] they are refused payment of their proportion of the earnings and profits.

Robinson, Anthony and [illegible] in their petition presented to the Senate to-day state that their interests are [illegible] with the [illegible] [illegible] of the [illegible] government to compel the managers [illegible] 100 of the bonds illegally issued in excess of the actual cost of the road, and that they [illegible] being men of small means [illegible] their rights in courts with [illegible] expense and delay, etc., therefore in their extremity [illegible] they came to Congress.

The Senate though will adjourn until Monday and probably the House [illegible] Since the absence of the President and [illegible] Washington has been duller than ever last summer.

Investigation Printing.

The work of printing the testimony taken at the different navy yards by the House committee on naval affairs is now in progress at the government printing office at the rate of about fifty pages a day and at this rate it will take more than three months to complete it so that the printing cannot be of much use in further proceedings of the present session. The cost of printing will be over $50,000.

THE CENTENNIAL.

Receipts at the Centennial Exhibition.

NEW YORK, May 12.—The World's special speaking of the first day's receipts at the Centennial Exhibition says they have fallen far below the estimate made. From returns of a few turnstiles actual count of money received there were not over 80,000 paying visitors admitted, bringing the receipts a little beyond $40,000. The Market street lines carried 10,000 passengers, Chestnut and Walnut street lines 10,000, other lines 20,000, and altogether 150,000 fares were taken up by the various conductors. Adding to this 7,000 taken to the grounds by the railroad companies the number present must have reached 225,000 all over. The most encouraging feature of the Exhibition to-day in the returns of the turnstiles this evening, showing 60,000 paying visitors or receipts of about $30,000.

The paying visitors to the Centennial opening Wednesday numbered 76,161. Although the crowd was greater than is likely to be again during the summer, the hotel accommodations proved adequate. The work of preparation continued [illegible] in belated departments. A large number of foreign paintings by celebrated masters have just arrived. Twenty car loads on the Pennsylvania railroad track and three vessels at the wharf are filled with belated exhibits. A few days more promise to complete all departments.

Iowa shows among exhibits in Agricultural Hall specimens of soils from 20 counties in glass tubes six feet long, showing the depth of loam.

Oregon's exhibit is rich in wheat, oats, wood and dried fruits.

Washington Territory shows the tallest wheat and oats exhibited.

California prodigies of fruit excite general wonder.

Foreigners Satisfied with the Exhibition.

The Times' Philadelphia correspondent this morning had several conversations with French, German and Spanish exhibitors, and was everywhere assured that the opening was a decided success, nor was this assurance given to inquiring Americans simply as a matter of courtesy or compliment, for from all sorts and kinds of people, from the French workmen clad in the hideous blue blouses of their class, from German exhibitors busy among their wares, and from French officials, gorgeous in court uniforms covered with decorations and rich with gold lace, I have heard the same opinion expressed.

Dom Pedro.

PHILADELPHIA, May 12.—The Emperor and Empress of Brazil and suite, numbering 10 persons, left this morning for St. Louis, after visiting Louisville and the Mammoth cave. The party on Thursday leave for New Orleans, and return to Washington by way of Mobile, Montgomery and Knoxville. The tour will be completed by visits to Niagara Falls, Toronto, Montreal, Quebec, White Mountains, Boston, Saratoga, Albany and New York.

Centennial Crowd not so Great.

The crowd at the Centennial grounds is not so large as yesterday. Work is still going on in the buildings and great improvement is noticeable. A gang of laborers are employed on Belmont avenue in clearing away rubbish, etc.

Machinery Hall.

Many people were attracted by numerous printing presses upon which editions of the New York papers are being worked off.

The executive committee of the Woman's Centennial Union met this morning at the Woman's Pavilion and discussed various routine matters. General Hawley stated this morning that the list of jurors will be published.

Ancestry of the Dynamite Murderer.

Of the ancestors of the dynamite murderer Thomas alias Keith, the Dublin Journal has received the following from an English correspondent: About four German miles from the town of Wyck, in North Scotland, is the little village of Hall Kirk, where lived about 40 years since a highly esteemed land owner, named Donald Keith. He had the misfortune, however, to get into pecuniary trouble through his son John, who was arrested for forgery and liberated upon his father's bail. The criminal did not wait for trial, but fled to America, where with his brother he founded a brewery and married. The issue of the marriage was the scoundrel who caused the Bremerhaven explosion. There are still in Scotland many members of Keith's family, who are greatly esteemed.

The commissioner states that in his judgment [illegible] in the management of [illegible] schools and [illegible] additional legislation is required to secure equality in the [illegible] Referred to committee on District of Columbia.

Adjourned.

House.

The first business of the House this morning was to elect S. S. Cox speaker pro tem during the continued absence of Kerr. After which the House went into committee of the whole on the post office appropriation bill, the question being in regard to abolishing the letter carrier system in cities less than 40,000 population. After debate the proposition to abolish the free delivery system was defeated by a vote of 1[illegible] to 29.

After the reading of a few further lines in the bill [illegible] moved to insert an additional [illegible] 000 for the letter carrier system in cities of less than 40,000 inhabitants.

Holman made a point of order that the time in the bill at which such an amendment could be offered was passed.

The chairman, Springer, sustained the point of order and against that ruling Foster took an appeal. The committee then rose. The appeal was reported to the House. The Speaker pro tem affirmed the ruling of the chairman and Foster further appealed. The appeal was laid on the table, 88 to 61. The House again went in committee and resumed consideration of the bill.

IN THE COUNTRY.

Let us take horses and go an hour or two out of town. The wind is blowing sharp but dry, the sun shines hotly and there is no fog. The farm house doors stand open and the fire in the stoves has died out; there is plenty of work in the field to keep everybody warm. The earth lies plowed into brown furrows ready for planting. There on the hillsides are the pale bluish slopes of early wheat high enough already to be stirred by the wind; down by the creek where the cows are gathered to sun themselves the pollard willows wave a thin green vapor in the air overhead; the birds are chattering and flying with stolen straws to build their new homes for the summer; motherly old hens go about with their broods flocking under their feet; Brindle passes you mild eyed and complacent, her calf by her side; the red buds of the maples are uncurling; a myriad tiny yellow gummy sheaths push their way to the light from under the ridged garden mold. You are conscious of a vast stir and wakening about you shown in these trifling things, a life wholly different from your own, or that of men, and which is in its own way powerful, clean, and chaste. Stir the wakening is about you. Midges begin to buzz and play over the saffron colored water in the creeks; quite out of sight under the brown pine needles the pink arbutus welcomes you with its delicious breath. The fish hawk, just home from the Southern coast, sits perched alone on the dead tree, where she had her nest last summer; even the old wind blown cedars show bright red blood veins in their gray trunks and put forth pale buds. The sand of the beach is warm, the air moist, the sea dark violet or emerald or blue and full of boundless life rushes in to touch the earth at your feet.

It is this life which is the strange new fact to you in your day's journey out of town. You feel as if you had yourself discovered it; how inexhaustible it is, how pure and how regardless of you! You think (not at all conscious that you are thinking platitudes as old as Job) that this great process of leafing and of growth would have gone on all the same whether you had died in that attack of fever last month or not; that all over the world the birds in the air and the beasts bring forth their young and the earth renews herself in youth and beauty no matter how your trade goes.

Nothing is more salutary than for a man to know his own insignificance and nowhere will he be taught it more sharply than when he sits down in the midst of the eternal calm movements of Nature; that is if he have eyes to see anything outside of his own little self. If he have not, he will jeer with a sour small beer wit at the quiet solemn voices of Nature as silly sentiment. But a manly, clear minded man going back into the town listens with nausea to its foul gossip and greedy bargain driving, and wonders why they had seemed so great and important to him a few days before.—N. Y. Times.

STEINBERGER AND FAR OFF SAMOA.—There will be no Steinberger affair nor any Samoan difficulty for the simple reason that Steinberger is not an American citizen and the fact that he has fallen into trouble with the Samoan King, whose Prime Minister and consequently subject he was, does not concern this government, which does not hold itself bound to protect the Samoan Prime Minister against the displeasure of his King. The story goes that after for some time seeking a consulship somewhere and always finding the Secretary of State indisposed to favor him he at last secured influence enough to get the President to appoint him a special agent to visit and report upon the Samoan Islands. This was in March, 1873. He sailed from San Francisco in June of the same year, returned in 1874 and made a report to the State Department, which he seems to have neglected to date, but which was sent in to Congress in April 1874. In this report he speaks of [illegible] instructions from the Department and oral suggestions, but he evidently magnified his office as much as possible, and when he returned he disappeared from public notice. He was next heard of last spring setting out for Samoa in a United States man-of-war with a gift of cannon, firearms and other government property, and having landed he dropped his American citizenship and became the prime minister of the Samoan head chief. Of course he could not be a Samoan and an American at the same time. He may recover his citizenship if he chooses to return here and claim it, but he has forfeited [illegible] [illegible] protection [illegible] our government when he became a political officer of another government; and that he did this in a very formal and conspicuous manner is well known to the world.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 12.—A little dodge has been unearthed on the part of the fire commissioners in assessing members of the fire department [illegible] per cent on their last month's salary to pay for lobbying through the bill before the last legislature to give exclusive control of the expenditures of the department to the commissioners and raise the salary of chief engineer.

Interview with Sharon.

The Chronicle this morning prints an interview with Senator Sharon, in which the latter says Congress and the people in the Eastern States evince a disposition to support the people of California in ridding themselves of the Chinese in a proper manner, but will countenance no violent measures. As regards the silver question, Sharon claims that silver should be placed on an equality with gold and made a legal tender to any amount. He thinks Conkling, Morton or Hayes stand the best chance for the presidential nomination, that at any rate the candidate must come from a border State.

San Francisco Whisky Men Anxious.

The revenue agents continue to keep the whisky men on the anxious seat. To-day the employes of the government are engaged in excavating under Bay View distillery. The officials are very reticent as to the object in view, but from previous proceedings of a similar nature here and elsewhere in the State it is supposed they are hunting for the subterranean plant of the distillers.

Check on Chinese Immigration.

Chock Wong, editor of the Chinese newspaper (The Oriental) says the six Chinese companies held a meeting Wednesday evening and decided to send a dispatch at once to Hongkong telling their partners there not to ship any goods in vessels carrying more than 100 Chinamen, so as to put a check upon the influx of their countrymen.

The Irish patriot O'Donovan Rossa, on his arrival this evening by the overland train, was met by the third regiment National Guards and escorted to his hotel.

A great crowd greeted O'Donovan Rossa at the landing this evening and accompanied him and the military escort to the Lick House, blocking up Montgomery and Sutter streets. After entering the hotel he appeared on the balcony and received an enthusiastic reception. He addressed the throng briefly as "fellow countrymen," and while recognizing their adopted American citizenship claimed that in marrying Young America they were still bound by ties of filial affection to their old mother Ireland.

CELESTIAL AMBITION.—"Talking of Chinamen," said the naval officer, "reminds me of a curious thing. The other day I went up town to see (mentioning a Chinese merchant on Sacramento street). I know his wife well. Knew her in China. She's got two of the smartest little daughters you ever saw. I very time I go to see her she makes them sing for me."

"Chinese songs?"

"No sir. American songs, you bet. She's got a teacher for em and they just tickle a piano down as fine as anything in the land. Well, the last time I was to see them the old woman says to me, 'You sabee lillie German gellie?' I says 'Yes, I sabee little German girl; what about her?' Well she says 'You catchee me one lillie German gellie me givee you thlee dollar.' I didn't know but what the old woman might be doing some kidnapping business on the sly, so I told her pretty short I wasn't that kind of a man. 'I wouldn't do nothing of the kind,' says I, 'if you pay me a thousand dollars.' 'Oh,' she says, 'you no [illegible] Me no want to makee him badee; me makee him me allee sam.' 'Ah! 'Oh,' she says, 'me no want Melican gellie; too muchee [illegible] too muchee [illegible]' And do you know what the durned critter's idea is?" said the naval gentleman, reaching for his companion's tobacco box. "Why, she thinks that by getting a little German girl and bringing her up with her own children she'll be able to take them into white society when they grow up."—S. F. Post.

SORROW BY THE WAYSIDE.—A family from Southern Kansas consisting of a husband, wife and three children passed through this city in a covered wagon yesterday afternoon and the following sad chapter in their history was related by the man. He stated that they left Kansas on the 1st of March with the intention of joining a number of families formerly from Kansas, who are now living in Tehama county. They traveled rapidly and without mishap until last Sunday morning, when their little babe, aged about 18 months, was suddenly taken ill and died. The grief of the poor mother on the death of her child knew no bounds. In fact she became temporarily insane, and when her husband wished to bury the body of the infant she clutched it wildly in her arms and fled from him, and hid herself in the woods where she remained over night alone with the corpse. It was not until near noon on the following day that he finally found her. She was completely exhausted by that time and had but little difficulty in taking her back to the wagon. She was induced to take some nourishment, and soon afterwards fell asleep. While she lay sleeping the little corpse was placed in a roughly constructed box, and the father and children buried it under a live oak tree by the roadside. The mother slept several hours and awoke with her mind restored. She assisted her husband in building a fence around the lone little grave, and then with many backward glances the afflicted family resumed their weary journey.—Reno (Nev.) Journal.

A pretty Boston girl who dotes on poetry and poets declares that she had twenty-two offers of marriage from authors of "Beautiful Snow."

Ladies will be pleased to learn that a press-ing machine for the use of smugglers has been invented whereby forty yards of ribbon, worth about $60, can be carried in a watch case.

Mrs. Allen, of Omaha, after twenty-five years of childless married life gave birth to a boy, and in announcing the happy event to her relatives in Maine she wrote: "Long have I wandered in lonely, cheerless gloom, but thank Heaven, I now bask in the son shine."

Two Pennsylvania tramps stopped at the house of a lone widow, and one went in to beg. Very soon he came out with a bloody nose and a first class black eye. "Well, did you get anything, Jack?" "Yes," growled the sufferer, "I've got the widow's might."

Georgia women seem to be pretty much like all the other women in the world. A Macon wife, in a letter to her husband in South Carolina, says: "You rote me word you was comin' home soon, and you hav not kum. So I am kortin' now. I am goin' to git married and goin' away from Georgy. I remaine yure wife."

A Nevada miner meeting Dr. Mary Walker 1,700 feet below the surface of the earth, put his arms about her neck and ravished a kiss from her lips. If the doctor's tailor had not neglected to put a pistol pocket in her new spring trowsers, that miner would never have seen the light of the blessed sun again.

"Say missus, your skirt is comin' down. It looks bad, an' if you'll jis step inside dis door-way I'll pin it up for you," said a colored woman to a lady in Louisville the other day. After that kind the old woman for her kindness the lady went on her way and soon after discovered that her pocket book had been stolen.

Said a Brooklyn wife to her husband the other day: "If you fail to produce me the money for a new spring hat in three days you will be the most astonished man that ever lived in this world." When he awoke the next morning he found his wife in the dressing room exercising with dumb bells. The money was "produced" that night.

Mrs. Cady Stanton relates that when Senator Christiancy married his wife out of the treasury department, Washington fashionables hung back from the newly made bride. Mrs. Secretary Fish however, called immediately, and said she would rather recognize a girl who earned $1,000 a year honestly and honorably than recognize a woman who made $10,000 a year by intrigue and dishonor.

A Louisville chap thought he had found something pure and fresh in the shape of a laughing, sunny little witch of a girl, and was on the point of proposing marriage when she scattered his fond hopes to the winds by remarking one evening: "You kiss and hug me more than any gentleman I am acquainted with except Bill Wallace, and he's a steam box clerk and only comes here once a month."

HUMOROUS.

Oh, Horror.—Tommy (suddenly on his way home from church)—"What did you take out o' the bag, mamma? I only got sixpence for here."

"Take your impudence," said a pretty girl, when her sweetheart tried to kiss her. "None o' your cheek," quoth he as he fought his way to the mouth of the crater.

A young lady who was rebuked by her mother for kissing her intended, justified the act by quoting the passage: "Whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, do you even so to them."

"Are you married, my dear?" asked an old gentleman of a pretty girl with whom he chanced to be sitting in a railway carriage. "No," said she, "but I've sued a fellow for breach of promise."

Miss Rose—Goodness, the fire is out. I thought it was very cold. Beau—"Shall I get my overcoat and put it on you?" Miss Rose—"Oh, no, but (glancing at the clock) hadn't you better put it on yourself?"

Fanny Foo Foo was a Japanese girl, the child of the great Tycoon; she wore her head bald, and her clothes were made half petticoat half pantaloons; her face was the color of lemon peel, and the shape of a tablespoon.

A St. Joseph, Missouri, girl recently refused a wealthy suitor because he ate beans with his knife. "Well, is a man expected to eat beans with his fingers because his sweetheart is prejudiced against shoveling them in with a knife?"

A gentleman writing to his San Francisco agent, wound up by saying "take good care of Julia." He carelessly allowed his wife to see the letter, and it required a big talk to explain the difference between a mine and a feminine.

A grumbling old bachelor, after listening to the following: "She was her mother's own little darling, wopsy popsy deary duckey, so she was, an' she must keep still," asks: "Why don't women talk some decent kind of English to their children?"

Scene in a horse car—seats all occupied. Lady enters. Elderly gentleman rises. Lady—"Don't rise, I beg of you." "I must pray, for you should keep your seat, sir." "Should be very happy to accommodate you, madam, but I want to get out here."

There are glasses and glasses. "Why," said a husband to his wife, "are you always looking in the glass?" "Because, my dear," was the answer, "the glass I look into enables me to improve my personal appearance; the one you look into only degrades you."

Gertie—I wish I had lived in the time of William the Conqueror, Annie, dear. Annie—Why, love? Gertie—Because then we should not have so much history to learn, and we should not have to learn the names of all those wives of King Henry VIII.

"O, isn't this a beautiful evening, George," said she. "Yes, delightful evening," he replied. "Such a splendid time for making speeches. Let's see them you'd scarcely expect one of me. Oh, you vile thing, George, how can you be so provoking?"

The Philadelphia Evening Star of a recent date says: "It is said that the most valuable forests for ship building in the world are those of Oregon, Washington and British Columbia. The yellow fir which grows there in great luxuriance has no equal for ship timber; nor is there anywhere a supply so abundant and so accessible of even interior timber. There is no industry of the Pacific coast more certain of a great development than that of ship-building."

The Astorian of Wednesday says: "Some of the fastest sailing that has ever been witnessed on this bay was noted to-day amongst the fishing boats, with a stiff northwest breeze. The scenes were grand. Equal to a regatta."

Mr. Allingham, from Halsey, reports every team and plow in active operation in his section of Linn. Also, that there are to be a dozen new dwellings erected there this season, and a new furniture store, and a new drug store lately opened there.

Art Cantrell, of Benton county, last week sold the fleece from his flock of Angora goats, aggregating near 1,600 pounds of very fine mohair, which will bring the owner a nice little sum. The yield of wool is equal in weight to that from sheep, and more valuable.

At its last meeting, the Ashland Lodge of Good Templars elected Rev. J. R. N. Bell, A. D. Helman and C. H. Gillette to represent it in the Grand Lodge, which meets at Salem on the 18th of next month. The lodge is in quite a flourishing condition, having a membership of about 100.

The eighth regular meeting of the Yamhill County Woman Suffrage Association will be held at McMinnville, commencing on Wednesday, May 17th, at 11 o'clock. There will be two or more [illegible]. Prominent workers in the field will be invited. Friends of the movement are urgently requested to be present.

An empty dwelling house on the bank of the river in Corvallis, belonging to Mr. Jas. Cauthorn, was discovered to be on fire by the night watchman at 1 o'clock yesterday (Thursday) morning. The promptness of the alarm and of the fire department of that city saved the building, with but little loss. It was without question the work of an incendiary.

One day this week a little son of H. Bailey, of the steam sawmill at Lafayette, had one of his feet nearly crushed off under the wheel of a truck, and was otherwise bruised by a fall of eight or ten feet, in which he struck the ground on his head and shoulders. The truck runs on a tramway that leads from the upper part of the mill down to the lumber yard, and it seems the little fellow was on the car when it started down the track by some means, when he was pitched forward and caught under the wheel, then thrown off the side of the track to the ground below.

A correspondent of the Reporter says: "Amity has had a proposition to extend the O. C. R. R. on to that place, and they have accepted the terms, and now we are going to have a railroad at last. There is no section of country that needs it worse than this vicinity. The time occupied in hauling off the hundreds of thousands of bushels of grain here in the fall of the year may now be occupied in putting in full grain, besides the business of the road will be doubled by this short extension. There will be in the vicinity of half a million bushels of grain to ship from this point, besides the other products of this rich agricultural region."

From the Albany Democrat we learn that a civil engineer of Salem has been engaged to mark out a town at Smith's Ferry on the north fork of the Santiam. There is not a prettier or more lovely spot in Oregon for a summer resort or site for manufactories, and as it lies at the commencement of the route over the Minto pass, it may yet be a town of considerable importance. We learn that the name of the new town will probably be called "Weatherford," in honor of J. W. Weatherford, Esq., of Salem, who last year bought property there for a summer residence in anticipation of that locality being [illegible] at some future day for a post town and rural village. His anticipations seem to be in a fair way of being realized.

The Jacksonville Sentinel says: "The nugget which was stolen at the time Kahler Bros.' store was robbed, some weeks since, was recovered on Monday last by Sergeant Dunlap. Wes. Kahler never gave up the idea that it was hidden somewhere in the vicinity of the store, and, from that impression, was induced to make occasional searches for it. On Monday last he employed Mr. Dunlap to clean out the rubbish under the rear of Mrs. Nenber's jewelry establishment which adjoins the drug store. The rear of that house stands on stone pillars about four feet in height, and behind one of these pillars under a slight covering of chips and small boards, the treasure was found—not more than ten feet from the entrance. The key to the safe and the three trade dollars are yet missing and will be searched for. They are thought to be near the store, and if found will add several links to the already strong chain of evidence."

PENDLETON'S BUSINESS.—The Tribune in a chivalrous mood explains that those who charge Mr. Pendleton with doing wrong to his wards in the Bowler estate injure him in this that he was never a guardian of the Bowler estate, consequently all these stories about him are cruel and so on. But the essential fact in the whole business is not met by the Tribune. The wrong was his using his personal influence with the Secretary of War to induce the Treasury to pay a claim about which grave doubts existed, doubts which have not been cleared away. Out of this claim Mr. Pendleton took as his share many thousands of dollars. The country will never believe that a man whose time is so valuable that he can earn seventy-five or a hundred thousand dollars a month by loafing around the War Department can afford to serve the country at the present rate of compensation. The whole Pendleton business is as shameless a job as ever disgraced an administration, and the sorrow is that a man so amiable and until now so highly esteemed as Mr. Pendleton should have committed political suicide by taking a part in it.—*N. THE TERRITORIES.

Montana has instructed her delegates to stick and stand by Blaine for President.

Thieves broke into a quartz mill at Silver City, New Mexico, and stole $1,000 worth of gold retort.

The La Plata Miner complains bitterly that the snow is ten feet deep on the range and not a drop of whisky in the town of Silverton.

In the third district court at Salt Lake City, last week, in the case of Trenor W. Park vs. the Emma Mine Co., ten days additional time was given the defendant in which to answer.

Capt. O. W. Burnett, who recently returned from the Black Hills, intends to start out again to that region, on the 20th of May, with a party of 100 men from St. Louis. He will locate about 75 miles west of Custer City.

A Salt Lake telegram to the Chicago Times, reports that the litigation between Brigham Young and Ann Eliza has been compromised. The suit was for alimony, and the Prophet seems to have arrived at the conclusion that it would be cheaper to buy a peace with that particular fraction of his wife than to continue paying enormous fees to lawyers.

The Owyhee Avalanche says: "A chunk of rock weighing over one hundred pounds was taken from the winze in the Maggie mine at Flagstaff City a few days ago. It bears evidence of being unusually rich, abounding in streaks that will assay from three to four thousand dollars to the ton in silver. Parts of it are almost solid silver, and it is said to be one of the richest silver specimens that has yet come to the surface in Owyhee."

The Helena Independent of April 27th says: "Ten thousand dollars in gold dust was brought yesterday from Last Chance and New York gulches. It was purchased by L. H. Hershfield & Bro. Encouraging reports are coming from the mines, and towards the first of the coming week the dust will be brought in in large quantities. So far only about $20,000 has been brought to the banks, but the mining season is just beginning, and little profitable work has been done."

The Pueblo Chieftain has information from a private source to the effect that the last great storm which swept over Colorado and adjoining Territories was very disastrous to herds in the sparsely settled parts of New Mexico. In the vicinity of Las Cruces and Las Vegas the storm was terrific, and sheep perished by thousands. One man lost 750 head out of a herd of 3,000, and others suffered in the same proportion. It is the most disastrous blow that the sheep interests of New Mexico have sustained for years.

Jesus Maria Baca, the pioneer printer of the trans-Missouri country, died at Santa Fe, a few days ago, at the age of 65 years. Mr. Baca learned his trade at Durango, Old Mexico, and, with Padre Martinez, emigrated to New Mexico, and in 1835 started the first printing office in the Territory, at the ancient town of Taos, near the Colorado line. With the same material he began the publication, at Santa Fe, of the Republican, which was the pioneer newspaper of that Territory. This was in 1847, and ten years later Baca gave up his case in the office, on account of failing eye sight.

SATURDAY MORNING, MAY 13, 1876.

GO TO THE PRIMARIES.

The Republican party primaries will be held in this county to-day for the purpose of selecting delegates to the coming county convention. Every Republican voter should make it a special point to attend these meetings. They have a right to do so, and more, it is the duty of all Republicans to whom the party and welfare of the party are dear and who desire to enjoy the blessings of good government to go and take part in the proceedings. There is no duty more incumbent on citizens than this. The common excuses of want of time and of want of interest in politics is insufficient. No equal amount of time can be so usefully or profitably employed as the short time necessary to be given to securing good, honest and reliable delegates and in nothing have all citizens a more powerful present personal interest than in providing for the choice of discreet capable and pure officials to whom to entrust the management of the affairs of the county, the levying of taxes, the disposition of county funds and the preservation of order and the maintenance of justice.

If it is desired to get rid of rings, cliques and such like things the best, and indeed the only way to do it is for voters to go to the primaries and prevent the selection of such men as delegates who are in the power of or who will be subservient to rings and cliques. It is often too late to object to such men after they have been made delegates, and besides it is unfair and unmanly to do so when no efforts have been made to have other and better men chosen in their place. If we do our best to prevent an evil, our liberty of speech and action is unrestricted afterwards.

Let every Republican voter to-day go to the primaries and assert his rights—the delegates then selected will at least represent the will of the whole party and not of a minute fraction of it. But if, as has often been the case, two thirds stay away, one more than one half of the remaining third can and certainly will fix things in a way that cannot be undone easily if at all.

In American party machinery the primary controls all the rest. Whoever manages it manages the party. Hence the immense importance that all lovers of good and pure government should attend them and see that their control does not fall in the hands of indiscreet, incapable or bad and designing men, who will use the power thus acquired for the advancement of selfish and, to the State, injurious ends.

AMERICAN HORSES IN ENGLAND.

The correspondent of the New York Herald in London has written a somewhat lengthy letter giving the English opinion of Mr. Sanford's horses and his own opinion of their chance of winning some of the great races in that country.

It will be remembered that some years ago Mr Ten Broeck took over to England a number of horses, including Lecompte, the only horse which ever beat the great Lexington, Prioress, Umpire and Starke. Of these all, except Lecompte, which did not stand the climate well and died soon after his arrival, won races, Prioress the Oaks, one of the great events. Umpire won many races, and was by many English turf men thought to be the fastest horse in England. He was at one time first favorite for the Derby but failed to win that race finishing third to Thormanby, the winner. Umpire subsequently became and still is celebrated in the stud and is the sire of many good race horses. Starke also distinguished himself as a race horse, having beaten Thormanby and the Wizard the two best horses of their year. Mr Ten Broeck, who had owned Lexington and been distinguished in America as a turf man, remained in England, but did not import any other American horses.

Since Mr. Ten Broeck's venture no other American has taken horses to England until recently when Mr Sandford of New York took over Preakness, winner of the Dinner Party stakes at Baltimore, the richest stake ever run for in America unless perhaps, the late race won by Foster in San Francisco be more valuable), Bay Final, own brother of Preakness, Mate, and two or three others. Of these, Mate and Preakness have each run one race and been badly beaten. Bay Final is engaged in the Derby, which is to be run for on the 30th inst., but if his price in the betting, 1,000 to 10, is any indication, he has not much chance of winning that greatest of all racing events. But it must be remembered that the betting is by no means an infallible indication, for Hermit, the horse which beat Lady Elizabeth and ruined the Marquis of Hastings her owner, who lost £140,000 over the race, started with the betting 1,000 to 10 against him.

It is thought in England that the American horses are too fleshy at present and have too little training to be able to do their best running. The correspondent says English racing men are far too astute to suppose that the horses belonging to Mr Sanford are to be judged by what they have already accomplished. They know very well when a horse is fit to run and they are satisfied that however good they may be they will not be ready before June, and there can be no doubt that Mr Littlefield, Mr Sanford's cover trainer is of much the same way of thinking. He has not gone in for "setting the Thames on fire" for fear that he might perish in the conflagration. He has acted wisely in biding his time and ignoring the sneers of those restless critics who always want a man to be 'up and doing.' He has said to himself, 'My horses want rest and they shall have rest.' Quite satisfied with the progress they are making, he is comparatively indifferent to the present. "If they run well, as they are, so much the better for the future; if they run badly they will not, under the circumstances, disappoint me." Though the career of Mr Littlefield in America shows that he does not require much teaching he has not hesitated to take advantage of the safe counsels modestly tendered by that prince of trainers, Matthew Dawson whose name is so favorably known to all American sportsmen who have visited Newmarket.

New York which has always been somewhat jealous of Philadelphia has, since its selection as the place for holding the Centennial Exhibition been more so than ever. It will be remembered that she threw all the cold water she could on the project in its inception and has let no opportunity pass for saying something disagreeable about Philadelphia. One of the latest things is the following from the Herald:

A correspondent writes a reassuring letter about the charges upon visitors at Philadelphia during the Centennial Exhibition. The hotels, he says, will not advance their rates more than fifty cents or a dollar a day. But why, we answer, should they make this advance? The fact that these hotels will have large crowds is a reason for reducing their rates and not raising them. There is not a hotel in New York that would not gladly guarantee to reduce its rates a dollar or fifty cents a day if it could be assured of full houses for any reasonable time by doing so. Advance in the hotels in Philadelphia is an extortion and will in the end do harm. Vienna should teach the hotel keepers a lesson. There the rates were advanced, not much but enough to ruin most of the hotel keepers who expected to make an everlasting fortune out of the foreigners. If the hotel keepers who have not spent a dollar on the exhibition and expect to earn huge sums of money are wise they will reduce their rates and keep them down until the Centennial is over. A visitor will spend more time if he can get along at three dollars a day than if the bill is five. In the end the result will be a greater profit to the city, the hotels and the exhibition.

The Sultan alarmed by the warlike preparations made by the governments whose subjects were murdered by the mob at Salonica has wisely resolved to do all in his power to make amends for the outrages committed at that place. He has instructed his representatives to assure the powers that he will amply apologise for the outrage, punish the offenders and, moreover, agree to any guarantees the Powers may demand of him. This is as much as could be expected of him. If he had any money in his treasury he might and probably would be required to pay a large indemnity to the families of the murdered men but he is absolutely impecunious and, if such an indemnity were required he would be unable to pay it.

We have been informed that the Financial Committee of three from each ward of the city appointed by the Centennial Committee will attempt to raise part of the funds required for the coming Centennial 4th of July celebration by subscription. We trust that their efforts will meet with success. We should be willing to subscribe for this object. Portland should not be behind hand in the celebration of the Centennial 4th and to celebrate it properly a liberal expenditure of money is indispensable. The management of the affair is in good hands and no one need fear that the money will be wasted, or injudiciously expended.

The St. Louis Times gives the pith of Senator Jones' late speech, thus:

Senator Jones has silver to sell
And Senator Jones
Don't make any bones
Of telling the country to buy
At figures remarkably high
That silver that Senator Jones has to sell

Judge Davis, of the supreme court of the United States, is having 1,776 white oak trees set out around his residence at Bloomington, Illinois, all on account of the Centennial.

A Brain-Soothing Remedy

The wondrous organ that crowns the edifice of man is not only the seat of reflection and the home of ideality but it is the governing centre of the nervous system When it is over wrought unduly excited or affected by irregularities of those bodily organs with which it most closely sympathizes all the nerves suffer and the general health is impaired The reason why Hostetter's Stomach Bitters exercise such a soothing influence upon the brain is that they remove those digestive and bilious derangements which react injuriously upon it and that in relieving irritation or weakness of the great sympathetic nerve which connects the stomach and the brain they beneficially affect the latter organ as well as the former Sound sleep clearness of mind easy digestion and freedom from biliousness are insured by this prime regulative tonic and nervine

THE AMERICAN WOMAN

HER [illegible] AS [illegible] BY AN [illegible] GENTLEMAN IN PARIS

[From Blackwood's Magazine.]

"Well, sir, I am very glad to meet you [illegible] Mr Armstead!"

"Ha, ha, thanks, thanks very much [illegible]," muttered Mr Airey in reply. Mr Airey had but lately arrived in Paris from Bond street, Mr Armstead from Beacon street. The Londoner had run against the Bostonian at the corner of the rue de la Paix.

"Are you going my way?" asked Mr Airey lightly.

"I am at your service, sir," said Mr Armstead, with a courteous motion of his head. As they moved along the broad pavement the Englishman entertained his companion with a thousand remarks on men and things. Paris always loosed his tongue, for while he tasted with delight the gayety and sparkle of the place he found at the same time much solid food for the moralist. When he was moralizing he felt that he was doing his duty. And so, with sense gratified and conscience in repose, a pleasant sun above him and a good listener by his side, the sprightly gentleman would comment for hours upon the frivolity of the Parisians. When he had brought to an end a nimble discourse on the probable haunts and customs of a passing Petit gras, he found that for the moment he was without another subject on which to dilate. So, turning to his companion like an amiable social inquisitor, he asked, "Now what do you find to do with yourself in Paris?"

Mr Armstead, whose share in the conversation had consisted of occasional solemn bows of acknowledgment, now coughed, meditated for some moments and then answered thoughtfully, "Well, I come down town and I walk around."

"But surely," cried the other, "for a man of your active habits—why, my dear Col Armstead, I—"

"Pardon me for interrupting you, but drop the colonel, if you please."

Mr Airey was vastly astonished. "I beg your pardon—I beg your pardon," he said, "but surely—why, I always thought that you Americans were particularly fond of military titles."

"Well, sir, we have had some pretty serious killing lately, and some of us don't take quite so humorous a view of the profession as we did when it was confined to the Indians and Mexicans."

"But still it is the custom in England and everywhere for a man who has served to keep his title. And you, who were distinguished—you surprise me, you surprise me very much."

Mr Armstead acknowledged the compliment by bending his head and slightly waving his right hand. After a pause, during which his companion watched him with much curiosity, he said, "It was found that there was a certain awkwardness in sending out your superior officer for a bag of nails or a two cent stamp."

Mr. Airey felt that, like a second Columbus, he had discovered a new America. This novel and interesting specimen must be drawn out, to be afterwards described and commented upon at all his clubs. He assumed an insinuating manner as he asked the leading question, "How do you like Paris?" Mr Armstead took time to reply. "I like it," he said, "but I fear there is a little too much of the New Englander in my composition."

"And a capital good thing, too," observed the other encouragingly. "The Pilgrim fathers would not have appeared to advantage on the boulevards."

"Certainly not. And yet your countrymen are, as a rule, are they not?—devoted to Paris. You know, of course, the saying, 'Good Americans, when they die go to Paris,' eh?"

The Bostonian bowed gravely at the quotation. "Some like it," he said, and added profoundly, after a pause, "the American in Paris is too often a Parisian hampered by morality."

The Englishman would doubtless have commented at some length on this remark, but his eye was at that moment caught by something which would serve him even better for a text. Above a large window, which was modestly covered by muslin curtains, appeared the name and title of Madame Lalouette [illegible] de M——. Over the name of the gentleman who had the honor of employing Madame Lalouette, a piece of blank paper was carefully pasted. "Look!" cried Mr Airey in great excitement, "just look at the woman's ingenuity. She must have been threatened with legal proceedings, don't you see? So she sticks up that paper, which blots out the cause of offense while it catches every eye and appeals to every imagination. 'Sophie, my child,' says one woman, 'of whom is this Madame Lalouette the premiere?' 'For me, I cannot conceive,' says the other, 'but Madame de Coraye is sure to know.' So they rush off to a third lady, and the milliner is advertised all over Paris by a single square of blank paper. It is magnificent."

Here Mr Airey paused for breath, and was straightway thrilled by the delightful consciousness of having been unusually brilliant.

"I know it," said Mr Armstead. "M Blank is an excruc[illegible] mystery to women, like the veiled prophet of Khorassan."

"Ha, ha! capital, capital! and by Jove! she is a clever woman. Just look at the other dodge."

"I have observed it," said the American. The large window of the ingenious artiste was draped with muslin, as if the mysteries of La Mode were sacred to those of the Bona Dea, but at one side of the window was placed a tall sheet of looking glass some two feet wide. While the two friends were gazing at the temple of fashion, the one bubbled over with remarks on the ingenuity of French women, the other watched them in silence as they [illegible] that looking glass. He remembered a method of snaring birds by the means, and smiled grimly. One lady just touched her bonnet in front, another her braids behind. One stopped and deliberately arranged the lace at the throat, another glanced hurriedly at the glass and then darted across the road a mute defiance of the observer. Even a bonnetless work girl caught a look as she slipped back to her work, and a large nurse whose beauty was no more than health and amiability shifted her small burden tenderly while she [illegible] some large fingers on the crisp border of her cap. The two gentlemen were still staring across the street, when a tiny brougham drove quickly up to the veiled window.

"Who is she? who can she be?" cried Mr Airey, and in a breath, "upon my word remarkably pretty. One can see in a moment the French moment of the world—grace, elegance, wit."

"It is my wife," said Mr Armstead, dryly. The Englishman was overwhelmed with confusion. "I beg your pardon—I beg your pardon. I had no idea I—"

"Won't you allow me the pleasure of presenting you to Mrs Armstead?"

"Thanks, thanks, delighted, I'm sure. [illegible] do you think we may go in—two men, you know?"

"I am not afraid for myself," said the Bostonian.

The front room of Madame Lalouette was tenanted only by gowns erect upon wire frames. "Dress extenders," said Mr Airey. "Average women," observed Mr Armstead, but there was a twinkle in his eye which softened the severity of his remark. In an inner apartment, which was seen through [illegible], [illegible] the rattle of two shrill French voices, one voluble in the language of the country, the other almost equally effective in a mixture of French and fantastic English. They were the voices of Madame Lalouette and Mees, so called in the establishment in recognition of her almost miraculous knowledge of our barbarous language. The double stream of persuasion, declamation and exclamation [was] interrupted by a third voice, high but not loud, and with a very pleasant pronunciation of French. Evidently the lady was not satisfied, for her tone was a little pathetic. Mr Airey hung back in alarm, but Mr Armstead, courteously waving him forward, stalked through the open doors with the unruffled calm of a [illegible]. "Prudence," he said, "will you permit me to present to you my friend Mr Airey?"

"I am afraid, I really am awfully afraid that I am intruding here," said the polite Englishman.

"Why, no," said the lady, with a slight delay on each word to emphasize her negative, and she added, "you can help me to choose a winter jacket. Do you like that?" and she pointed to a garment which was floating up and down the room on a most elegant young person, who [illegible] the remarkable fall in her back.

"Charming, charming! upon my word, exceedingly pretty."

"What do you mean?" asked the lady demurely. Mr Airey was delighted. These little American women have such self possession and so much spirit. His heart warmed to her as it [illegible] all pretty women. [illegible] In their presence he feels himself kindled to wit [illegible]. He will moralize on them by the hour. He [illegible] to take a comparison of two [illegible] charming lady.

"It must be a strange life," he observed, lowering his voice, "this sweeping up and down and bending of the body under other people's jackets."

"My figure is my fortune," remarked Mr Armstead, who was standing very upright by his wife and staring at the gliding garment.

"Why, it must be delightful!" exclaimed Mrs Armstead. "Only fancy being always sure to have the very latest thing."

"Good gracious! how frivolous," thought Mr Airey.

"It is evident that I must go to my banker," said the lady's husband. "Shall I have the pleasure of your company, sir, or do you remain among the jackets?"

The lady looked [illegible] prettily.

"How charming," thought Mr Airey, and he said, "I think, if Mrs Armstead will allow me, I will stop and put her into her carriage." The lady smiled, and her husband stalked off alone to his banker. The Englishman now bloomed into talk with such sprightliness and vivacity that Madame Lalouette was reduced to a fixed smile of appreciation and Mees could no longer display her unique power of language. Mrs Armstead awarded her cavalier occasional smiles and nods while she gave her attention to the business before her. She liked a prattle in her ear and had the rare gift of seeming to understand it.

Having finally decided how the jacket was to be cut, how it was to be decorated, and what it was to cost, she was light hearted, and for conversation's sake began to babble of her doubts. She wondered if she had chosen right. Did he think the shape would go with the last gown? Was it too heavy? Was it too light? Would it be very becoming? To all these questions she waited for no answer, but stepped daintily into her brougham. Then she gave the gentleman some fingers beautifully gloved through the window, and said smiling, "I have half a mind to go back and countermand it. Would you be so good as to tell me the time? Thank you so much. How late! And I have forgotten little Bobby's medicine again. I guess I won't go back about the jacket. Home!" Thereupon she was swept away, leaving Mr Airey with his hat in his hand. He stood holding his hat and staring after the carriage, until a fat French lady of fashion pushed him off the pavement while her little darling of a dog ran between his legs. Having unwound himself from the animal's chain and murmured an apology to its owner, Mr Airey put on his hat and heaved a sigh. "I have forgotten little Bobby's medicine again," he repeated as he moved away.

And they talk of the frivolity of the French women. Poor little Bobby. This moralist has a tender heart and delights to exercise it. Pathetic were the pictures which he conjured up of the little innocent. He thought of Tiny Tim and little Paul Dombey.

He fancied the sick child lying like a faded flower on his small bed, and lisping blessings on his mother, whose whole mind was concentrated on the choice of a winter jacket. She had forgotten the medicine again. How often had she forgotten it? Perhaps for months that little blighted child had been sighing for the lively tonic, or the dark brown cod liver oil, but the hand which should have administered the draught while its fellow soothed the pillow of the sufferer, was poising bonnets or fingering fringes. Perhaps at the very moment poor little Bobby was looking his last look into his mother's eyes and whispering, 'Never mind, mother, it's too late. I shan't want the physic now. You may take it all yourself.' "But this is weakness," said Mr. Airey to himself as he found the tears in his eyes. He went home like a man bent on discharging a duty, and, springing light as a French thinker from the particular to the general, wrote in his diary: "American women have even less feeling than Parisians."

A week passed and Mr Airey had not called upon his Boston acquaintances. It was no small sacrifice. Had any one ever told him that he was in love with a married woman, his neatly arranged hair would have risen and betrayed the thin places. Nevertheless, on some of those platforms which in countless numbers lie between the abyss of love and the heights of sublime indifference, the estimable gentleman moved with ease and grace. The pleasure which he felt in the society of a charming woman was to some extent unlike that which he derived from the conversation of his maiden aunt or his former tutor. The unlike element, whatever it may be, never troubled his conscience, but when he was forced to disapprove of an attractive woman he manfully resisted his inclination for her company. He resisted his tendency to call upon the Armsteads for a full week. On the eighth day after their former meeting he had his hand on the bell of their apartment. Perhaps he went to moralize, perhaps to offer medicine. The door was opened by a French maid who was crying in a most becoming manner. The visitor's imagination was aroused. "Is it Bobby?" he gasped. She nodded prettily. She could not speak for weeping. She led the way into the first room, and after a moment's hesitation he followed her. The sight which he beheld was indeed surprising. On the table stood a bottle of physic, and by it the most delicate of sweetbreads untasted. Mr Armstead, his somewhat rugged face softened by emotion, was bending, like a breech loader with the charge withdrawn, over a comfortable sofa. Opposite to him was his wife, who had sunk upon the floor, and with tears pouring down her cheeks was soothing the little sufferer! The little sufferer! Between husband and wife, propped by the softest pillows, draped by the softest shawls, important and deeply conscious of his importance, reclined the prince of pups. Mr Armstead came forward. "How do you do, sir?" he said. "I hoped that you were the physician. Have you any acquaintance with the maladies of dogs?" "None whatever," said Airey tartly, "and indeed I am glad to see that you can interest yourself in a dog at such a moment." "At such a moment," repeated the other, slowly. "When little B[illegible]by—" began the Englishman, visibly affected. "Why, sir, this is little Bobby."

At the sound of his name, uttered in a measured tone which he knew so well, the sufferer turned a plaintiff eye upon the intruder. 'Behold how the great-minded suffer,' he seemed to say. His skin was so loose that it would have been well had an accomplished workman gathered it in at the waist. His coat was starry, and his tail, that sign of his [illegible], uncurled. The lines about his ebon visage were deepened by illness. The face told of suffering, but of a certain pride in the interest which it excited. The large dark eye was turned upon Mr Airey, but awoke no pity in his breast. That he should have expended a whole week's sentiment upon a sick dog! As well sit down in the ditch with great Mr Sterne to lament over a dead donkey. "I think I had better go," said the moralist, with a glance at Mr Armstead. "I am afraid that my wife is not equal to conversation at present. I trust that we shall have the pleasure of seeing you under happier circumstances." "Ah, thanks, I'm sure," murmured the visitor, and he glanced again at the lady. She was wholly unconscious of his presence. She was holding the [illegible] hand of the patient in her own and [illegible] it with her tears. Mr Airey departed silently.

The next morning, as the moralist was [illegible] with his breakfast and meditating [illegible] on the New England character, a curious [illegible] was brought to him. It was shaped like a fan. He opened it with a snort of contempt. "Another novelty," he exclaimed testily. "Our mustard pots are made like beer jugs. We shall soon have beer jugs in the shape of baths, and baths disguised as handsome [illegible]. Marvelous powers of invention, truly!" He spread out the sham fan and read the nimble pointed character.

"Dear Mr Airey, How you must have wondered at my strange conduct yesterday. I was in the deepest despair, and quite unfit to receive anybody. To-day all looks bright again. The dear doctor came soon after you left. He is such a dear, ever [illegible] and attends the dogs of the best people in Paris, of all parties. The favorite hound of the Duc d'Aumerle, La Marquise de Baldele's famous spaniels (of course you remember M Connors' brilliant [illegible]) and M Beretta's new poodle Fraternite are among his patients. He says that our little Bobby has no serious malady, but recommends a warmer climate. So we start at once for the south and shall wait at Nice. I should prefer the [illegible] but hear that the boats [illegible] eating frogs. Will you do me [illegible] [illegible] going back to London [illegible] but they are invaluable for Bobby's skin. My husband is in despair at having to leave Paris [illegible] Perhaps we may meet somewhere in the South. Very cordially yours, PRUDENCE ARMSTEAD."

"[illegible] for that [illegible]," [said] Mr Airey. "Well, I suppose [illegible]." He could eat no more breakfast. He took down his diary and wrote in it [illegible] that day: "American women are absurdly over sensitive."

There is but little in monetary matters calling for special comment; the local market being very quiet and some increase in the demand for monetary assistance coming from the fisheries of the Columbia and from parties in different localities who are inaugurating improvements. Since the rains caused the large class of people known as agriculturists have in a great measure neglected the markets, and the absence of [illegible] has been felt [illegible] change the depression [illegible] as [illegible] kept [illegible] important [illegible] of wheat. There are, however, a good many parties from the interior laying in summer stocks of dry goods, groceries and agricultural implements and machinery, and filling out spring stocks with seasonable goods. Altogether the week has been a fair one in business circles generally, and merchants have usually had their hands full.

There is still a disposition shown by some members of Congress to doctor the finances of the country. Among the latest is the amendment to the new silver bill submitted on the [illegible] by Senator Morrill of Vermont, and which he gave notice he should offer. It is substantially as follows: Make the weight of the new silver dollar 4[illegible] grains instead of 4[illegible] grains troy; make it legal tender [illegible] in any one payment instead of $5; make the new silver dollar exchangeable by the Secretary of the Treasury for United States notes of the denominations less than $5, commencing with the lowest, instead of allowing all United States notes to be thus retired. Insert a new section providing that after 50,000,000 of the new silver dollars shall have been issued they shall thenceforth be issued only in exchange for gold coin at par. Finally, in place of Senator Bogy's amendment to fix the legal relative value of gold and silver at 15½ to 1, Mr Morrill of Vermont proposes to make it 1[illegible] to 1.

Domestic Produce.

In regard to wheat we find it difficult to give quotations, as transactions are so few in number and of such amounts as scarcely serve to establish prices at a figure. Exporters are not disposed to offer over $[illegible] per cental, though an advance might be secured for choice lots for milling purposes. For shipment to San Francisco the quotation here could not well be above that price. Flour is not changed, there being a good supply in the market and a fair local trade and moderate shipping demand. Provisions are generally firm, though hams and lard are in liberal receipt and the latter may decline soon. Eggs are wanted at current quotations, but may also drop to 15c early next week. Poultry is plentiful and prices weaker. A large dealer says in his circular this week: "Butter selling at all sorts of prices. Every farmer should have a 2 lb butter mould and put up his butter in 2 lb rolls and cloth—as butter sells much better in 2 lb rolls than in odd shaped chunks. We advise interior traders to buy no butter in any shape other than 2 lb rolls in cloth, and we cannot promise over 18 to 20 cts for the very best butter in 2 lb rolls." There has as yet been but little done this season in wool in the local market. Merchants seem indisposed to make large contracts for the spring clip, more chances being given to the grower to ship through some house and try the market for himself. In hides there is a sharp decline, and sales are made with difficulty.
